Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 10 women, 40 to 50 years of age, who were sedentary and had no cardiovascular or pulmonary disease. They were randomly assigned to a 10-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of three sessions per week of 30 minutes of moderate-intensity aerobic exercise. The control group consisted of 10 women who did not exercise. The HR and EE were measured at rest and during exercise at the beginning and end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the training program had a significant effect on the HR and EE of the women. The HR at rest decreased significantly from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the HR during exercise decreased significantly from 145 to 135 beats per minute. The EE at rest decreased significantly from 1,200 to 1,100 kcal per day, and the EE during exercise decreased significantly from 1,800 to 1,600 kcal per day. These results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular and metabolic health of sedentary, middle-aged women.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program on the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program was designed to be a safe and effective means of increasing physical activity for women who were previously sedentary. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The sessions included a warm-up, a low-impact aerobic workout, and a low-intensity strength training routine. The results of the study showed that the program had a positive effect on the physical fitness of the women, with significant improvements in cardiovascular fitness, muscular strength, and body composition. The program was well-tolerated by the women, and the results suggest that it may be a viable option for increasing physical activity in sedentary, middle-aged women.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet on the body composition and physical fitness of obese women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 20 obese women who were randomly assigned to either a diet or a control group. The diet group was instructed to consume a diet that was 1000 kcal less than their maintenance level. The control group was instructed to consume a diet that was equal to their maintenance level. The subjects were monitored for 10 weeks. The diet group lost significantly more weight than the control group. The diet group also lost significantly more body fat than the control group. The diet group also had a significant improvement in physical fitness compared to the control group. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet is effective in reducing body weight and body fat, and improving physical fitness in obese women.
